

Greg VanDeweel joins the Electric Guard Dog team

Columbia, SC (April 13, 2009) - To meet the increasing demand for its perimeter security system, Electric Guard Dog has added Greg VanDeweel to its team as Vice President of Sales.

VanDeWeel will meet this demand for better perimeter security by growing the inside and outside direct sales teams into a national sales network.

His responsibilities will encompass working with Business Development Directors, Cindy Vaughn and Michael Pate on compliance issues.

VanDeWeel brings over 20 years experience in security sales and executive management for companies as Stanley Convergent Security, Sonitrol Corporation and Checkpoint Systems. VanDeweel will report directly to Electric Guard Dog CEO, Jack DeMao.

Electric Guard Dog's approach to security is different than other industrial perimeter security measures. Custom fitted to meet the distinct security needs of each business, an Electric Guard Dog system is installed inside an existing perimeter fence. When armed, the solar-powered electricity pulsates through the fence, creating a safe, but very effective barrier to intruders.

Industries using Electric Guard Dog as their perimeter security system include: auto, auction, transportation, energy producing, storage facilities, recyclers, rental yards and construction sites.
